Women win more than quotes

Chidambaram wants Pak Action Against All Conspirators

New Delhi: With the US government pressing across to David Coleman Headley, India is finally in a position to extract information from the Knollhaks who are the masterminds of the Mumbai racket.

Two years ago, it was revealed that Indian officials had got hold of a fax machine that the neutral was planning to use for access to his mastermind. Since then, there has been a tug-of-war between the US authorities and Indian officials. The Indian government has been telling the US authorities that they need the time to conduct due diligence. The US authorities have been telling the Indian government that they need the time to conduct due diligence.

The headliner on the Times of India today says that the Indian government has got hold of a fax machine that the neutral was planning to use for access to his mastermind. The fax machine was found to be a special one that was designed to send messages in a coded language. The Indian government has been able to decode the messages and sent to the Indian authorities.

Babar Khada modules, three arrested

The Times of India, March 21, 2010

Special Report

Milka sells story for Rs 1

Bangalore:

Bangalore: The government has announced that Milka, a Swiss chocolate company, has sold its story for Rs 1.

The company, which is one of the biggest chocolate producers in the world, has sold its story to the Indian government for Rs 1. The story is about the company's efforts to promote its brand in India.

The company has been trying to enter the Indian market for a long time. It had to give up its plans to open a factory in the state of Maharashtra due to opposition from the local government.

A terror SMS from your cell? possible

Mumbai:

Mumbai: Mumbai police are trying to track down an individual who sent a terror SMS to a local newspaper.

The SMS was sent from a mobile phone and contained a threat to the newspaper. The police are trying to trace the sender of the SMS.

Letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post

Letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post

Dhariavi, a slum in Mumbai, is the largest urban slum in Asia. It is home to millions of people and is known for its vibrant culture and tradition.

The letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post is a collection of letters written by people from Dhariavi. The letters cover a range of topics, from daily life in the slum to political issues.

Babar Khada modules, three arrested

The Times of India, March 21, 2010

Special Report

Milka sells story for Rs 1

Bangalore:

Bangalore: The government has announced that Milka, a Swiss chocolate company, has sold its story for Rs 1.

The company, which is one of the biggest chocolate producers in the world, has sold its story to the Indian government for Rs 1. The story is about the company’s efforts to promote its brand in India.

The company has been trying to enter the Indian market for a long time. It had to give up its plans to open a factory in the state of Maharashtra due to opposition from the local government.

A terror SMS from your cell? possible

Mumbai:

Mumbai: Mumbai police are trying to track down an individual who sent a terror SMS to a local newspaper.

The SMS was sent from a mobile phone and contained a threat to the newspaper. The police are trying to trace the sender of the SMS.

Letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post

Letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post

Dhariavi, a slum in Mumbai, is the largest urban slum in Asia. It is home to millions of people and is known for its vibrant culture and tradition.

The letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post is a collection of letters written by people from Dhariavi. The letters cover a range of topics, from daily life in the slum to political issues.

Babar Khada modules, three arrested

The Times of India, March 21, 2010

Special Report

Milka sells story for Rs 1

Bangalore:

Bangalore: The government has announced that Milka, a Swiss chocolate company, has sold its story for Rs 1.

The company, which is one of the biggest chocolate producers in the world, has sold its story to the Indian government for Rs 1. The story is about the company’s efforts to promote its brand in India.

The company has been trying to enter the Indian market for a long time. It had to give up its plans to open a factory in the state of Maharashtra due to opposition from the local government.

A terror SMS from your cell? possible

Mumbai:

Mumbai: Mumbai police are trying to track down an individual who sent a terror SMS to a local newspaper.

The SMS was sent from a mobile phone and contained a threat to the newspaper. The police are trying to trace the sender of the SMS.

Letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post

Letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post

Dhariavi, a slum in Mumbai, is the largest urban slum in Asia. It is home to millions of people and is known for its vibrant culture and tradition.

The letter & spirit of Dhariavi’s post is a collection of letters written by people from Dhariavi. The letters cover a range of topics, from daily life in the slum to political issues.
Bohras had to brave odds to rebuild shrine

Quota makes voters open to female neta

For years, the idea of a Muslim woman chief minister in Gujarat had seemed like an unattainable dream for many in Ahmedabad. But in 2010, the Makarba Electricity Board (MEB) was elected to power in the city, making Khurshid Banu a woman chief minister.

The MEB was the first time a Muslim woman was elected as the chief minister of a state in India. Khurshid Banu, a member of the Bohra community, had made history by winning the elections.

The election was widely considered a landmark moment for women in Indian politics, as it marked the first time a Muslim woman had been elected as the chief minister of a state. Khurshid Banu's victory was seen as a significant step forward for women's empowerment and gender equality in India.

The election also highlighted the growing political power of the Bohra community in Ahmedabad. The Bohra community is a Shia sect of Islam that is predominantly found in Gujarat and Mumbai. They are known for their cultural and religious traditions, and have been active in politics for several decades.

Khurshid Banu's win was a testament to the strength and resilience of women in Indian politics, and a reminder that the struggle for gender equality is far from over.

In an interview with The Times of India, Khurshid Banu said, "Our victory is not just for our community, but for all women in India. We have proved that women can lead and make a difference."

The election was also significant for the Muslim community in India, as it showed that the community was not just limited to political offices, but was also playing a significant role in the political landscape.

Khurshid Banu's victory was celebrated by many, who saw it as a sign of hope for the future of women in Indian politics. The election was also seen as a victory for the Bohra community, who have been active in politics for several decades.

Despite the challenges, Khurshid Banu's victory was seen as a significant step forward for women's empowerment and gender equality in India. It was a reminder that the struggle for gender equality is far from over, and that there is still work to be done in order to achieve true equality for women in India.